A. INTRODUCTION

The Real Work Lecture Program (KKN) is a form of education in the form of service to the community. In this dedication students are given the experience of learning to live in the middle of the community outside the campus and directly identify and deal with the development problems faced. Lecture

Real Work is an intra-curricular form that is the implementation of the Tri Dharma of Higher Education using the method of introducing and giving students work and study experience in empowering the community (Ahmad Ulil Albab Al Umar, et al 2021 : 39). Real Work Lectures (KKN) STMIK Indonesia Banda Aceh is one of the implications of the University, which is community service. KKN for students is expected to be a new learning experience to increase knowledge, ability, and awareness of community life. For the target community, the presence of students is expected to be able to provide motivation and innovation in the field of development. This is in line with the function of higher education as an agent of reform. Therefore, students must be able to act as a bridge (communicator) in the process of development and application of science and technology in particular. A student is a person who studies and is enrolled in a college or university in order to develop intellectual abilities, critical thinking, personality, especially to train verbal (speaking) and quantitative (numbers) abilities, and moral reasoning in the discipline they are studying (Gigih Wahyu Jatmiko, 2017: 16).

KKN's Real Work Lecture is a service activity by the University which is carried out by students to the community under the guidance of lecturers and the leadership of the regional government. The purpose of this KKN activity is to produce scholars in Higher Education who are able to appreciate and deal with and solve problems that occur in the community. The Real Work Lecture is an intra-curricular form that is an implementation of the Tri Dharma of Higher Education using the method of introducing and giving students work and study experience in making a difference in society. (Ahmad Ulil Albab Al Umar, et al, (2021), p. 39). The existence of KKN, then students will gain experience in being involved in a role in society as well as provide benefits for society and students, (Hermanto Rohman, et al, 2020), p. 3). The target of the KKN activities are students, the community together with the regional government and the University, each of the three benefiting from the existence of the KKN activities. So that it can be concluded, KKN is an activity of community service, education, research by Higher Education under the guidance of lecturers and regional government in order to overcome the problems that exist in a certain region so as to gain good experience and benefits for students, regional government, and Higher Education. As stated in the Law of the Republic of Indonesia Number 12 of 2012, Article 1 (11) on Higher Education, it is mentioned that service to the community is an activity of the academic community that utilizes science and technology to advance the well-being of the community and enlighten the life of the nation.

KKN implemented must meet four principles, namely feasible, acceptable, sustainable and participatory. In general, the level of implementation of KKN is divided into 3 levels, namely the preparation level, the implementation level and the evaluation level, reporting and follow-up. At the reporting stage, the reports made consist of two types of reports, namely, group reports prepared by a group of students and individual reports prepared by one student. Observation is done with the following methods: question and answer, (2) documentation, and (3) seeing the field directly. Based on the results of the observation, the program is determined.
